Department of History

Academic session: 2022-2023

Seminar Report:

Title: Women Revolutionaries of Bengal: From Swadeshi Era to Independence

Speaker: Nandita Pal, Assistant Professor in History, Government General Degree College at Kharagpur II

Date: 23.11.2022

Time: 12:30 pm -2:30 pm

Duration: 2 hours

Venue: Seminar Room, First Floor

Convener: Sujit Das, Assistant Professor and Head, Department of History

No of Participants: 26 students attended this seminar and there were 5 teachers from various departments of this college.

Aims and objectives:

- To encourage students to take part actively in studies beyond their limitation of syllabus.
- The students get a chance to interact with experts from a specific field.
- To give an idea to the students about the lives and legacies women Revolutionaries of Bengal who had been given little significance in the conventional syllabus just mentioning few names of them. For the present generation Pritilata, Kalpana Dutta, Bina Das have little significance or none at all beyond text book engagement or of compulsive celebration.

Outcome of the activity:

Honourable OIC sir, Dr Partha Sarathi Sinha inaugurated the seminar by lighting up the traditional lamp. In the welcome address OIC sir spoke on the basic purpose of holding the seminar and urged the students to participate with enthusiasm in this platform meant for creative and academic discussion and intellectual interaction. In this lecture, the speaker drew attention to the fact that majority of the works published specifically on militant or revolutionary movement of India remained largely androcentric. Revolution, Violence, terrorism are culturally associated with men, thus culturally defined as not feminine. She argued by involving in the revolution women revolutionaries transgressed in the so called masculine domain. She also focused on sociocultural background of these women, their perception of revolution, colonial exploitation, nationalism and stereotypical concepts gendered role, social expectations that denied the participation of women in terrorist activities. She explained though women started to participate in revolutionary movement from Swadeshi era but their role were passive, mainly limited to giving ornaments for raising fund, exchanging letters, message secretly, giving shelters to male revolutionaries. But 1930 marked the turning point in the participation of women in India's struggle for freedom. This year women for the first time became equal partners, activists and comrades in the armed struggle as the women revolutionary took part in assassination and other kind violent action, remained underground and accepted martyrdom and imprisonment.

This session was followed by a question answer session in which students participated actively.

In the Valedictory Session, the Convener of the Seminar, Asst. Professor and Head Sujit Das gave vote of thanks finally. Certificates of participation for the seminar were distributed to the students. All the sessions were truly enriching and intellectually engaging.

Title: Revisiting Gandhiji: In Our Times

Speaker: Sujit Das, Assistant Professor and Head in History, Government General Degree College at Kharagpur-II

Date: 11.04.2023

Time: 1:30pm -3:30 pm

Duration: 2 hours

Venue: Room no. 301, Second Floor

Convener: Nandita Pal, Assistant Professor, Department of History

No of Participants: 22 students attended this seminar and there were 7 teachers from various departments of this college.

Aims and objectives:

- To encourage students to take part actively in studies beyond their limitation of syllabus.
- The students get a chance to interact with experts from a specific field.
- To give an idea to the students about different philosophical thoughts of Gandhi beyond the limited scope syllabus of explaining Gandhi only in the purview of Indian Nationalistic Movement.

Outcome of the activity:

Honorable OIC sir, Dr Partha Sarathi Sinha inaugurated the seminar. In the Keynote address, Prof Ramkrishna Ghosh, TCS and Assistant Professor of Botany made students aware how different political parties and other agencies use historical facts or personalities and their thoughts in distorted ways to achieve their narrow political goals in present times, prevailed not in India but also all over the world. Therefore, students should always read the original papers and books before assessing any great thinker, not just relying upon knowledge gathered from social media.

The resource person of this seminar was Sujit Das, Assistant Professor and Head, Department of History. In this lecture, Prof. Sujit Das elaborated the concept of Sarvodaya lucidly to the students. Utilitarianism believes in the greatest happiness of the greatest number but Sarvodaya desires to promote the welfare of all. Sarvodaya desires to bring about the moral uplift of the rich and material uplift of the poor. This is the backbone of equality, social justice and the democratic idea of Gandhi which is an alternative to western democracy. Prof Das also suggested to look into the principle specially in the backdrop of identity politics in India in present time which is revolving around more about caste, creed, religion and so many dividing lines than development.

This session was followed by a question answer session in which students participated actively.

In the Valedictory session, the Convener of the seminar Assistant Professor Nandita Pal thanked the speaker for his valuable and thought-provoking speeches. Finally, Certificates of participation for the seminar were distributed to the students. All the sessions were truly enriching and intellectually engaging.

10. Participants: 37 students of Zoology, 03 Faculty Members of Zoology & Officer-in-Charge of GGDC, KGP II.

11. Event Summary:

The webinar series was formally inaugurated by Dr. Partha Sarathi Singha, Officer-in-Charge, GGDC, KGP II. The webinar series had four sessions handled by two eminent research scholars from different corners of India.

Keynote Address was given by Arpita Chakraborty, Head, Dept. of Zoology, GGDC, KGP II.

Speaker Mr. Santanu Mahato addressed the first & last Sessions (17/06/2023 & 09/07/2023). The topic of his lectures was:- 'Techniques and Tools for Monitoring Wildlife Habitats and Populations,' In these sessions he explained to the different techniques used in fields to monitor wildlife population. He stressed the importance of using techniques best suited for a particular habitat.

Speaker Ms. Rima Sadhukhan addressed the second & third sessions of this webinar series where she spoke about : 'Demonstration of different field technique for flora and fauna'. During these sessions she demonstrated different techniques used in the field of conservation biology for assessing flora & fauna. She discussed various advantages & disadvantages of techniques through case studies.

There were Q&A sessions after every lecture when students curiously asked questions for further clarifications. Esteemed speakers tried their best to satisfy the curiosity of learners.

The webinar series officially marked its end by a vote of thanks by Ms. Arpita Chakraborty, Head, Dept. of Zoology, GGDC, KGP II.

12. Outcome of this Webinar: Students gained sufficient amount of field-based knowledge from the field experts. The additional knowledge gained helped them to solve problems based on wildlife conservation & management. They learned to apply these tools & techniques in a more accurate manner.

13. Feedback status: Feedback forms (created using Google Forms) collected from students & analyzed. Students liked this programme & desired to be part of such events in future.

Understanding the Wildlife Population

Population Parameters

Population Parameters	How to get the information?
Occurrence (Presence/absence)	Indirect sightings (foot prints, droppings, etc). Direct sightings, Interview with Local People, Vocalization
Abundance	Direct sightings, Vocalization
Density	Direct sightings, Vocalization
Demographic Characteristics	Age, Sex

Table 1. Summary of sampling methods used for population estimation (Cite: Mishra et al. 2012)

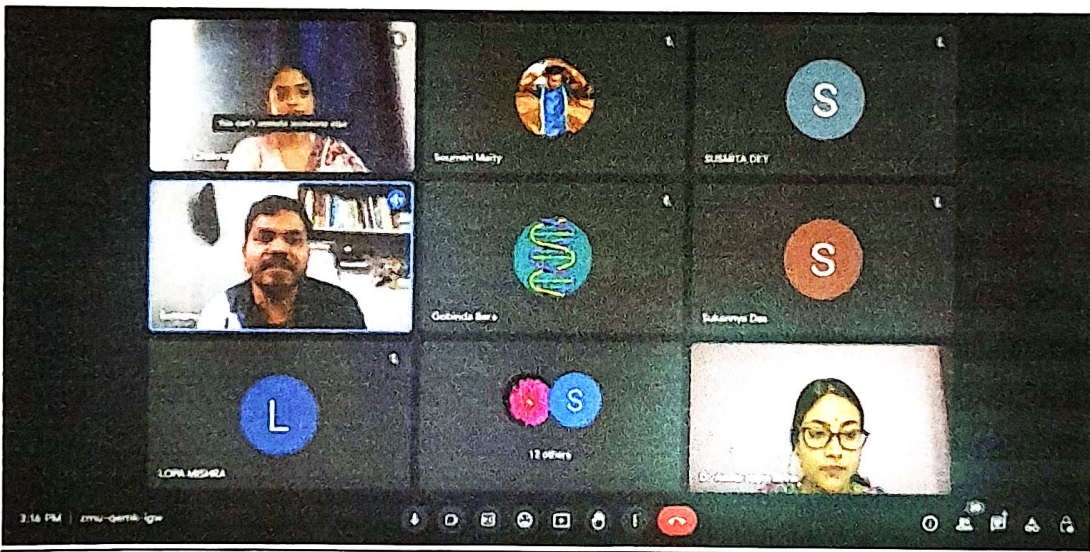

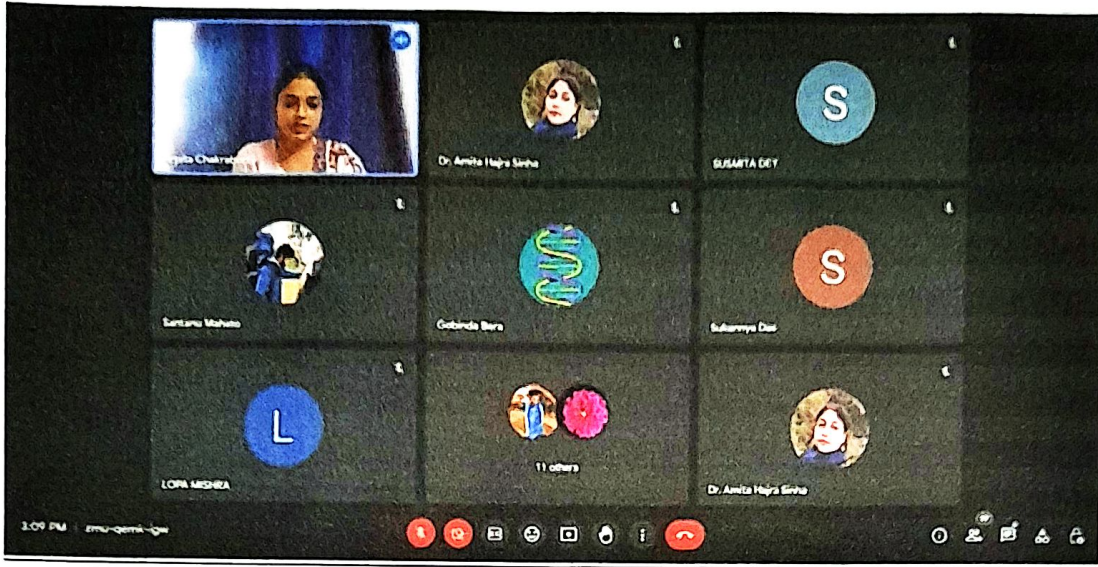

Method	Length	Cost	Accuracy
Direct	1.0	1.0	1.0
Indirect	1.0	1.0	1.0
Population	1.0	1.0	1.0
